OCTOBER 23 - 24, 2013

8AM - 5PM

 Register On-Line through ERMA at www.erma.az.gov using the above event number ***

Description: This course introduces the various natural, technological, and civil hazards to which electric power systems may be vulnerable and the potential effects the hazard may induce. Measures to reduce risk are discussed along with the importance of integration the full range of capabilities and emergency response organizations when developing a response plan. Participants review the responsibilities of utilities during incident recovery, organize information for presentation to the public and media during an incident, and discuss activities involved in disaster planning.

Prerequisites: Successful completion of IS-700.a: NIMS, An Introduction, IS-100.b: Introduction to ICS and IS-200.b: ICS for Single Resources & Initial Action Incidents. You can find these independent study courses at <http://training.fema.gov/IS>.

Target Audience: Emergency Management, Emergency Medical Services, Fire Service, Government Administrative, Health Care, Law Enforcement, Public Health, Public Works

Costs: Training is provided at no cost to eligible jurisdictions through federal grants. ADEM will not reimburse any backfill, overtime or travel-related expenses.

Registration: Participants must enroll no later than 14 days prior to the start of the course. Enroll on-line through ERMA at www.erma.az.gov. First time users will be required to create an account prior to enrollment. You must provide a valid email address and phone number for contact information.

-NEW FEMA REQUIREMENT-

FEMA has moved from requiring social security numbers for tracking and has created a new Student Identification System (SID). This number is now required in place of your social security number on all applications to track your FEMA training. You can verify if you already have a FEMA SID or create a new account by visiting <https://cdp.dhs.gov/femasid/>. Students will be required to have their FEMA Student Identification (SID) Number prior to the first day of this class.
